

ABSTRACT

This invention relates to matched instruction set processor systems and a method, system, and apparatus to efficiently design and implement matched instruction set process systems using interconnected design components. The method includes decomposing the matched instruction set processor system into interconnected design vectors. The method further includes analyzing and mapping the interconnected design vectors into specific hardware and software elements.

005444.P002